

The Campbell Law Peer Mentor Program

Directors: Jessica Acito (jaacito1104@email.campbell.edu) & Savannah Perry (sbperry0212@email.campbell.edu)

- Who: The Campbell Law Peer Mentor Program is comprised of second and third-year students who have proven themselves to be leaders within the school. These mentors possess maturity, approachability, dependability, and flexibility. The Peer Mentors are a diverse group of students, including those who excel in the classroom and out of it.

- What: The Peer Mentor Program's goal is to provide a compassionate, caring, and communal environment for first-year students. The first year of law school can be a challenging time. The Peer Mentor Program strives to make the transition as smooth as possible, while encouraging school and community involvement.

- Where: The Peer Mentor Program does not stop at the doors of the building. Throughout the semester, the mentors will plan off-campus events to talk about positive and challenging aspects of the first year and offer any advice they can give.

- When: Students' first interaction with the Peer Mentor Program begins immediately at orientation on the first day.

"Law school has challenged me to be a better person--a better student, a better thinker, and a better professional. However, it was through the peer mentoring program that I learned to be a better me--a better listener, a better confidant, and a better friend. I learned more about myself by connecting with others."
-Evin Grant (c/o 2016)

"The first year of law school is full of so many different challenges. I enjoyed the Peer Mentor program because I knew had this group of mentors I could turn to for questions on how to navigate 1L year. Plus, the food was a pretty nice perk too!"
-Holly Stephens (c/o 2017)

"Your first year of law school is such a unique and terrifying adventure. It really helped me to have upperclassmen there to reassure me, 'hey, I've done this before, and I survived—you will too.' The friends I made through my peer mentor group are now some of my best friends, and they helped make 1L year fun (and who knew that was possible?)."
-Katie Tysinger (c/o 2016)