EFFECTIVE 7/1/2021:

COVID 19 and HUMAN SUBJECTS RESEARCH

All human subjects research studies previously approved to conduct in-person with direct contact (face-to-face) with participants may resume.

Any studies previously granted IRB determination/approval with research activities which include virtual contact with participants must file a protocol amendment to include conducting research activities in-person.

The IRB Office will begin accepting protocol amendments and new protocol submissions including in-person research activities beginning June 24th, 2021. If you have questions regarding whether your study provides direct benefit, contact irbadmin@campbell.edu.

For in-person studies, you must follow institutional policy, as well as all recommendations and actions of the appropriate public health authorities.

Projects involving in-person contact at other sites than Campbell University

All studies involving in-person contact with research subjects outside of Campbell University should follow guidelines of that site (e.g., University/Clinic).
