Brief Description of Women in Christian Leadership Class

Have you ever wondered or been challenged about women being leaders in Christian settings? In this class we will explore the ways that Scripture supports women's roles in leadership, the struggles often faced by women pursuing these callings, as well as various methods and models of leadership. Join us as we work, reflect, and read together and hear from women who are currently leading in a variety of Christian contexts.

American Christianity

American Christianity will explore important moments in the history of Christianity in America. Although the class will provide an overview of the ways Christianity in America has unfolded, it will focus on 12 important topics including Christians and Slavery, Americans and the missionary enterprise, and the role of women in the evangelical movement. Students will work to discover common themes and helpful lessons in the many narratives that define American Christianity. This class will be offered as an online class taught by Dr. Lydia Hoyle.

DIVI 2222: Person & Work of Christ

DIVI 2222: Person & Work of Christ is an advanced theology elective that explores two of the mysteries at the heart of the Christian faith: "What do we mean when we say that Jesus was fully God and fully human?" and "How does the death and resurrection of Jesus accomplish the salvation of the world?" This class sits at the intersection of theology, history, and spiritual formation and it is essential for practical ministry.
