MBA 708: Special Topics – Innovation Imperative

It's difficult to pick up a business periodical without the words "creativity" and "innovation" leaping off the page. In an era of unprecedented change, companies require sustained innovation, sometimes incremental – sometimes radical, to gain and maintain a competitive advantage within their industry. Innovation is the top priority for CEOs for over a decade. So why are companies having difficulties innovating despite opportunities to innovate presented by globalization, technological advances, and increasingly worldwide infrastructure? What do innovative organizations look like? How do you manage the innovation process? How can you become more innovative? This course attempts to bring into focus why innovation is today's leading buzzword and how to lead an innovative team and organization.

MBA 708: Special Topics – Leading with Your Strengths

Teaching leadership from the perspective of knowing your strengths, but also focusing on how to promote change from an innovative perspective. More information to come.
